Student Government Day To Be Held Saturday

The City Government - Student Relations program in which 120 Col-Hi seniors have participated is based on the idea that an informed citizenry makes a progressive community.

This program has involved students in an opportunity to observe in person the Richland City Departments at work and the coordination of the departments that is imperative in order to solve the challenges faced by City Hall.

It is also designed to familiarize students with the role of legislative, administrative and departmental officials.

Students have spent three hours of observation in the department of their choice, mostly with the supervisors, for Part I which is called "Student Observation Week."

In Part II, "Student Government Week," the twenty-one students who were elected and appointed to serve as City Councilmen, City Manager, and Department heads have spent approximately 15 hours meeting with their counterparts.

Tomorrow will be a staff meeting of all Student Department Heads with the Student City Manager. There will also be a Student City Council meeting which will combine the participants of both "Student Observation Week" and "Student Government Week". Members of the council are: Jim Crittenden, Randy Fullmer, Pete Harmon, Karen Ingalsbe, Kraig Kemper, Phil Stover, and Bonnie Hopkins, who will lead the council.

Members of the council met on November 23 with Ron LaCouture, Assistant City Manager. He explained the organization of city government, gave them a test on the trends and facts of city government, and gave them the proposed schedule for both weeks.

Tom Cahn was appointed to be City manager, and he received applications for the department heads and conducted interviews. Council approval was necessary for the City Clerk and City Attorney's position. The City Clerk is Mike Jaske and the City Attorney is Karl Thompson.

This program has been beneficial for both the high school students and the City. The parents of the participating seniors will probably have learned more about the programs and activities to which they contribute money, and the City has found a way to communicate with Richland's youth.

Tolo Plans Set

Tolo chairman Laura Waite has formed her committees and work has begun for the February twenty-fourth dance. Committees and their chairmen are: Favors, Ellen Elliot assisted by Roxanne Copeland; Royalty, Janet Boston; Decorations, Kathi George; Band, Darlene Napora assisted by Nicki Boason; Refreshments, Wendy Engler assisted by Angela Peyton; Tickets, Carol Parkhurst; Publicity, Connie Leyson assisted by Martha Danes; Activities, Karen Ingalsbe assisted by Francis Teeple; Election, Bonnie Hopkins; Invitations and Chaperones, Janet Clark; Clean-up, Marion Sampson; and Throne, Shari Johnson.

The Assembly Committee chairmanship is not yet filled. February 24 is a tentative date, pending the outcome of play-offs in basketball; should another game need to be played to determine the rank of teams, the Tolo dance will be held March 30th.

Student Council Plans Christmas Tree Contest

Seating arrangements for home basketball games and plans for a Christmas Tree decorating contest were the major items of business at the last Student Council meeting, held November 30.

Due to the annoying conduct of junior high students, the Council moved to allot the two center portions of the lower bleachers on the home side of the gym to Columbia High School students only. In the same action, the Council also approved the seating arrangements for the Pep Club and Band at home games. They will be seated in the same spots as in previous years.

The possibility of a Christmas Tree decorating contest was the next item of importance. After a brief explanation of the idea by ASB President Bob Paul, the Council discussed the idea and then passed the following motion:

A Christmas Tree decorating contest between the Sophomore, Junior, and Senior Classes, and the Faculty, will be held approximately one week before Christmas vacation. The prizes will be twenty dollars for first place, five dollars for second place, with a limit of twenty-five dollars to be spent on the project by each contesting group.

Judging will probably be done by some persons from outside the school, and other details will be handled by the Executive Council. The prize money will come from the ASB Reserve Operational Fund, reported Dave Barber, ASB treasurer.

Other business included suggestions for ASB Improvement Projects, a report on Floodlights for the "R" by Andy Michels, Co-House and Grounds Manager, and assorted Homeroom business.

Thespians To Present 'Marriage Machine'

By Bob Avant

Do you want to be computerized, checked and sorted, then matched up with the girl or boy of your dreams? That's what Connie Drake, played by Nikki Murray, tries to do with people in the riotous comedy, "The Marriage Machine."

Connie has a fine scientific mind, but is a little out of it as far as the emotional aspects of life are concerned. Her theories on marriage are soon disrupted.

Charles Fenton, played by Mike McElroy, is also a scientist with many of the same ideas of Miss Drake. Connie's plans of being matched up with Charles are quickly shot when Julie Rankin, played by Shari Iler, comes into the Introduction Service, mistakenly thinking it is an employment agency. Julie is somewhat scatterbrained, and after taking the tests, is promptly matched up with Charles. Connie thinks this is a mistake and calls Charles' apartment and finds his roommate Stan Parker, played by Bob Avant, is the only one there.

They lead a merry chase after Charles and Julie, thinking they are having an awful time. All the while Charles and Julie are having a gay time and are growing fond of each other. Connie finally catches up with them, explains that it was all a mistake (?) and Julie and Stan go off together and Charles and Connie think they are happy with each other.

It turns out that they are not happy and in the end Julie ends up with Charles and Stan gets Connie, much to the dislike of Agnes, played by Anne Frey, who is Connie's down to earth aide.

The dates for the play are January 13 and 20. They should be two nights of great entertainment.

MR. LOSS appears to be enjoying his duties as advisor for the Thespian play, "The Marriage Machine." Actually, he is teaching Shari Iler how to fall romantically into the arms of a boy.

Judi Eckhardt Crowned Tri-City Junior Miss

"I've never won anything before, not even a bingo game," said Judi Eckhardt, the Tri-Cities new Junior Miss, after she was announced as the winner. Judi is a blond, blue-eyed Col-Hi Senior, and has maintained a GPA of 3.25.

AFS CELEBRATES 20TH ANNIVERSARY

How would you like to spend your senior year in a foreign country? It's possible with the American Field Service. The AFS is a private, non-profit organization devoted to encouraging international understanding through education. The AFS will give you a chance to go to a foreign country and participate in the community life while living with a private family.

Celebrating its 20th anniversary, the local AFS is made up of a group of people who are interested in the program "make-up committee," which nominates students for the program and finds homes for foreign students. All final selections are made by the New York office of AFS.

By February 15, a Richland home for an AFS student for 1968-1969 will be chosen. Interested juniors should be thinking about having students live in their homes.

AFS sponsors Mohan Sampath, from New Delhi, India, who is living in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Cahn.

The World Friends Committee has students that correspond with the local AFS and report its progress to the WFC's 50 members. Also, this year the WFC has had a watermelon party to introduce the new foreign students, a Foreign Student-Faculty Tea, a Halloween party, and Linda Carlson has shown her pictures of her visit to Turkey.

The announcement of the new Jr. Miss came on Saturday, after almost a week of preliminary activities. These included a tea on Monday; a training period for the physical fitness routines on Wednesday; and a Judges' conference.

The criteria for judging the girls was mental alertness, physical fitness, poise, talent, the judges' interview, and scholastic achievement. For the physical fitness portion, the eleven contestants were divided into two groups to do a routine to "Chicken Fat."

For the final judging on Saturday, Judi did "Happy Talk" from South Pacific as her talent presentation. For her serious question, she was asked "What Does the Golden Rule Mean to You?" After winning the contest, Judi was presented with her prizes which included her crown, numerous gift certificates, a Jr. Miss charm bracelet, and a dozen long-stemmed red roses.

The Tri-Cities Jr. Miss contest was sponsored by the Jaycees of the Tri-Cities. The contest was open to any senior girl who wished to apply. The state competition will be held in Pullman on January 24, 25, 26 and 27. If Judi wins the state contest, she will be sent to the National Competition at Mobile, Alabama.

letter defends park problems

Dear Editor

I'm writing in behalf of the sophomores, juniors, and seniors that go down to the Columbia Playfield throughout the day.

In the last three issues of "SANDSTORM" there have been articles about the Columbia Playfield problem. In these articles they told about all the vandalism that has been done down at the Park and they also told about how the park attendants and some private citizens had been threatened and how we (the kids that go down to the park) had made the park unsafe for any self respecting person. Well I'm sorry, but I'm tired of everyone ranking us and making us all sound like a bunch of hoods and I'm hoping this will put a stop to it.

I do admit that some of the vandalism that has taken place down there was done by some of us. But we have taken things into our own hands in the last month and have tried to stop all the vandalism that is done by kids from out of town or kids that don't even go to Col-Hi during evenings or on weekends. In fact a lot of the vandalism has been done on the weekends by kids from out of town who come to Richland to get drunk and not by any of us. I guess you could say the city has done some of the vandalism too, because they're the ones who took out the drinking fountain and I can prove it. The day that the fountain was taken out I was down at the park and I sat and watched the park attendant take it out, in fact I asked him why he was taking it out and he told me that they always take it out in the fall so the pipes won't freeze and they always reinstall it in the spring.

Also no park attendants or private citizens have ever been threatened in any way or form and I feel the city has lost track somewhere of the facts and fantasies about the whole thing.

There are just a few of the things that I want to say, but I have neither the time nor the paper to say all I really want to say. I just want the people in the city and the kids at school to know that the kids that go down to the park are the best bunch of kids that I've ever met and I'd stand up to any of them for anything I thought was right.

—Virginia Williams, Junior.

Mary Hettinger

Music is a very important part of the lives of both Mary Hettinger and Randy Fullmer, but it is two different kinds of music.

Most Col-Hi students heard Mary Hettinger sing at the Homecoming Assembly with the other members of her folk trio, Karlen Rekonen and Pete Harmon. Mary and Karlen have been singing together since grade school and don't use any music for their singing.

They make up all their own harmony and guitar chords themselves, working completely by ear. Although the trio doesn't get paid for the performing they do, Mary earns money by singing solos at weddings.

Mary hopes to become a professional singer, but not with a group. She says, "I like to be independent. In a group you're too restricted and too dependent on the other members of the group."

She doesn't know where she'll

Senior Profiles

go to college, but she plans to major in music and minor in business.

Randy Fullmer, leader of the band, "The Isle of Phyve," has different music interests than Mary, since he is a professional now, but does not intend to make music his career. Randy plays lead guitar in the group, sings, handles all contracts, and is also the spokesman for the group.

At the present, "The Isle of Phyve," whose other members include Robert Magula, Keith Gosney, Lynn Stanfield, and Tom Peashka, is making $200 to $300 per night. They have recorded a record called "Things to Remember Me By," which will be released in January or February.

Randy says that he will probably always play the guitar for his own enjoyment, but his real career interest is architecture. Randy plans to attend WSU or the University of Hawaii and study architecture and design.

Both Mary and Randy belong to NHS and have many other interests besides music. Mary likes snow-skiing and Randy enjoys playing basketball. He is on the Westside Church League which he says "Should take the championship this year."

Key Club Cleanup Success

Saturday, December 2 was the scene of the Key Club's Columbia Park cleanup.

With twenty members in attendance, the Key Club started at 1:00 p.m. and worked diligently on into the afternoon.

The first part of the project started at the patio picnic area, where club members picked up pieces of broken beer bottles, cigarette butts, wrappers, and bills of broken brick. They also cleaned out like objects from the fireplace.

Then they moved on to other areas of the park and raked trash from under the ping-pong tables and cleaned all the trash out of the bushes.

Graig Thomas, First Vice President of the club, in a heroic effort, risking life and limb, climbed to the zenith of the swing set and untangled a badly vandalized swing.

Next spring, Key Club plans to replace the damaged brick, and repaint the patio area and the tennis slab.

The vocal music department of Col-Hi is planning a Christmas concert to be held at the New Lutheran Church on Tuesday, December 12. The concert is free and open to the entire public. The Col-Hi Advanced Choir will be singing both Christmas and religious selections. The Mixed Chorus will be singing three Christmas carols. Both groups will be supplemented by Bel Canto, the Sandmen, Mixed Ensemble, and a Folk Trio. The choral groups are directed by Mr. Richard Ydstie.

Camelot Presented

Tonight and tomorrow will be the last two performances of the Richland Light Opera's Camelot. The curtain will rise at 8:00 p.m. in the Chief Jo auditorium.

"Camelot" is the closest thing to a tragedy the Light Opera Company has produced in a long time. When asked why ticket prices have gone up to $2.00, Mrs. Jones, the "Camelot" director, replied, "The costs for producing a play keep on going up, so a raise in the price of tickets became very necessary. We think 'Camelot' should be a very good musical to get people used to a permanent raise in price."

Mr. Bill Allen, an English teacher at Col-Hi, is one of the supporting actors in "Camelot."

With the Bombers' two impressive wins last weekend, Spokane Hotels are already filling up fast. Urie Anderson had enough confidence in himself and the team that he made his reservations on September 13 for a bed at the Ridpath Hotel. Rumor has it that Mark Painter and Scott Woodward are again filling berths at the always popular Coeur D'Alene. Make your reservations before it's too late.

Once again last week's "Stud" Council meeting lived up to its famous reputation of do-nothingness. The controversial meeting started off with taking pictures for this year's COLUMBIAN. But before pictures could be completed certain matters had to be cleared up: (1) Should pencils be placed behind ears or not? (2) Was it effeminate for the boys to cross their legs? (3) Did Chris Nickola really have to go home and change his shirt?

After pictures were taken the legislative body went on to more important business. Andy Michels corrected the minutes by stating he did not second the motion to install heating coils in the toilet seats in the boys' "lav."

And then it happened, folks, all hell broke loose. The seating of Pep Club and Band was introduced to the governing body. Pat Maki felt the Band should not have the best seats in the student section, but Virginia "Ginny" Berger thought they looked "cute" where they were last year. After discussion had raged on for 30 minutes, Chairman Pete Harmon asked the Council what they thought of the new twice amended motion pertaining to the seating of the Pep Club and Band. Rick Adrian brought up the moot point that "I think it's a good idea." The previous question was called for and passed. After considerable string pulling and political parlaying the motion was passed unanimously. The Band and Pep Club will retain their traditional seats.

The next 20 minutes was consumed by such trivia as "should the cheerleaders and songleaders wear green and gold outfits or gold and green uniforms." Then after 10 minutes of heated debate the meeting was adjourned. We urge all students who have a free period during the council sessions to come in and watch. Any similarity to persons, living or dead, names or situations described in the above literary epic are coincidental and any resemblance is purely accidental.

Teenagers Defended

By Cathi Schmidt

Long hair and "LUV" make up the teenage generation today, or so some people say. If they would try to take a good look around them they wouldn't just see hippies and long haired kooks; mixed in, there do happen to be decent kids who must bear the shame of being labeled a "stupid kid".

Talk about hippies? So there are a few, but they don't make up the majority of the teens. You have got to remember that not every teenager has long hair and a sloppy nature; some of them are halfway human.

A lot of adults are saying that the teens' morals have gone to the dogs, but how do they know? Let these people take a good look at their past and then let them decide if teenagers are as bad as they thought they were. Yes, there are a lot of teenage marriages these days, but do the parents really realize why? Did they ever figure it might be their own fault? Parents, that's what's behind most of these marriages, not pregnancy!

Look at the environment we are living in now, and then let them tell us how to live. To us, life is here, to be lived as we see fit to live it, which is, to its full extent with only a few holds barred.

So teens are rowdy, well, most of it is noise that is made just in fun, not in complaint or pain. We like life and are just trying to live it the way we feel it should be lived, honestly and in fun with no malice towards anyone.

Those of the teen generation that raise all the Cain and cause all the trouble aren't really living like they think they are, they are just existing. Eventually they will realize all this and by then it might be too late for them to change or turn around and go back.

I have heard the saying "life is like a roulette game" somewhere, and now I'm beginning to see what they mean by it. Right now the teens are on the losing end, but the time will come when our name is called, and when it is it won't be backed by long hair and "LUV". People are going to need us someday, and when they do, we will be there, bearing no ill will or hate, because from that day on we will not be "Teenagers," a word spoken with distaste, but "Adults."

The "Now Generation" is us! We are here and here to stay! So we make a few mistakes; they will all be corrected in the end. We may be of no use now but one of these days we will be called on, not as "Teenagers", a word spoken in distaste, but as "Adults". Then watch our dust!

Fire At Col-Hi

Unbeknown to many students at Col-Hi, there was a fire in the boys' restroom at Mac Hall on Tuesday night. Two pumpers, one salvage rig, one ladder rig, and the Battalion Chief car were all present to extinguish the lighted piece of paper thrown into a waste paper barrel.

According to Fire Marshal Ward, Richland has five complete rigs and they "Have to run just about everything but one manned rig to the high school." The rigs to Col-Hi come from Stations No. 1 and No. 2, leaving the one rig at Station No. 3 being the only one to serve the entire city.

Besides this fire, the false alarms, and recent series of bomb scares, Col-Hi has cost the city much money. All of these "humorous" incidents seem to be quite harmless, but, on the contrary, they could leave the city in a terrible predicament if a large fire ever occurred during the time that the rigs are stopping alarms and searching the school for numerous hours.

RHS Takes Jamboree Again

GEORGE KINNEY (12) attempts to block a West Valley shot in Richland's 62-44 rout Saturday. Looking on are Chris Nickola (20) and Bob Utecht, with Dave Barber (32) posing.

WV, KENNEWICK, PASCO OUTCLASSED

The Richland Bombers started their 1967-68 basketball season in fine form as they swept the Tri-City Jamboree and pushed by the West Valley Eagles last weekend.

All-conference guard Chris Nickola led the Bomber victory in the Jamboree with a 22-point effort followed by Bob Utecht with 15. The Richland B opened with a 17-13 effort against the Pasco B and the A team finished the job on the Bulldog A unit 26-9, for a 43-22 total. The story was the same against Kennewick as the Bees took a 28-15 advantage and the A team followed with a 29-12 edge. The total was 57-27.

The highly touted Pasco Soph Ron Howard led the overall scoring with 23. It still remains to be seen just how good he really is because he played on the B team against a B defense.

Saturday the Bombers defeated West Valley of Spokane 62-44 in a tough game. The Eagles were in the game for the first three quarters. Their zone defense, along with the Bombers' poor field shooting, kept them close. The Bombers opened the fourth quarter with eight unanswered points and went on for the final margin of 18 points. Nickola again led the scoring with 20, followed by

Bombers To Meet Grizzlies

A full schedule of basketball action is on tap for the Richland Bombers this weekend as they tangle with the Sunnyside Grizzlies at home tonight and travel to Spokane for a return engagement with the Eagles of West Valley on Saturday.

The always tough Grizzlies finished second in the Yakima Mid-Valley League last year and expect to be contenders again this season. However, they dropped their season opener last week to the potent Walla Walla Blue Devils.

Art Dawald's Bombers dropped their first encounter with Sunnyside last year, but defeated them twice in regular season and District cage action later in the year. West Valley assumed the role of Richland's first victim last Saturday night, losing to the Bombers 62-44, despite an ice-cold shooting exhibition by the usually hot-handed Richland five.

Coach Art Dawald predicts a tough battle with West Valley in the Capital of the Inland Empire, but undoubtedly has a few tricks up his sleeve which have not been revealed yet.

PERSONAL FOULS

By Bill Portch

In the three-week absence of SANDSTORM due to holidays, many important occurrences have gone unreported. PERSONAL FOULS attempts to outline the most vital.

Both Jim Crittenden and Scott Woodward placed on taking a spot on the State star list. However, the sports-All-Conference football teams, with tall one Woodward also writers of The Tri-City Herald and the Yakima Herald must have been working too long when they reached the name of leading Bomber tackler Bill Hedges, who received naught . . . Despite a casualty list comparable to Vietnam's Hill 816, Dawald's B-ballers are expected "to go a long way," in the words of the leader . . . The former "Bubba" Steck(line) has traded in his football-Thespian jersey for a "Santa Steck" suit at Valu-Mart . . . Somehow, Pasco received a beautiful purple and white fire plug before Friday's Jamboree.
